

MSCI Index Explainers: Financial Ecosystems

Transcript

What are financial markets and who is involved?

In a financial market, entities seeking capital (buyers) meet investors (suppliers), and capital is exchanged for potential investment returns. Over time, markets have evolved into an intricate ecosystem of public and private institutions that offer diverse financial products.

To help understand these complex relationships, you can imagine the financial ecosystem as a rainforest. As you move higher towards the canopy, the more sunlight and exposure you receive. So, too, in a financial ecosystem.

At the top is the equity market, where publicly traded company shares are bought and sold, and asset managers simplify investing. Share prices are public and visible. Most investors invest in the equity market with the help of asset managers, brokers or wealth managers. In this market, asset managers will use indexes in passive vehicles to help them track the market or as a performance benchmark for active strategies.

Moving down, we find the fixed income market, with similar players. Asset managers offer expertise for both passive and active strategies, and wealth managers will assist individual investors to access this market. However, fixed income securities don't always trade on exchanges, occasionally making the market more opaque.

Further down, we find the alternative markets layer, where we can find hedge funds and private capital firms that use more complex investment strategies and tend cater to larger institutional investors. While maybe less visible to most investors, hedge funds and private capital firms play an important role in ensuring the whole ecosystem functions effectively.

It is not possible to invest directly in an index. Exposure to an asset class or trading strategy or other category represented by an index is only available through third party investable instruments (if any) based on that index. MSCI does not issue, sponsor, endorse, market, offer, review or otherwise express any opinion regarding any fund, ETF, derivative or other security, investment, financial product or trading strategy that is based on, linked to or seeks to provide an investment return related to the performance of any MSCI index (collectively, "Index Linked Investments"). MSCI makes no assurance that any Index Linked Investments will accurately track index performance or provide positive investment returns. MSCI Inc. is not an investment adviser or fiduciary and MSCI makes no representation regarding the advisability of investing in any Index Linked Investments.

Index returns do not represent the results of actual trading of investible assets/securities. MSCI maintains and calculates indexes, but does not manage actual assets. The calculation of indexes and index returns may deviate from the stated methodology. Index returns do not reflect payment of any sales charges or fees an investor may pay to purchase the securities underlying the index or Index Linked Investments. The imposition of these fees and charges would cause the performance of an Index Linked Investment to be different than the MSCI index performance.

The Information may contain back tested data. Back-tested performance is not actual performance, but is hypothetical. There are frequently material differences between back tested performance results and actual results subsequently achieved by any investment strategy.

Constituents of MSCI equity indexes are listed companies, which are included in or excluded from the indexes according to the application of the relevant index methodologies. Inclusion of a security within an MSCI index is not a recommendation by MSCI to buy, sell, or hold such security, nor is it considered to be investment advice.
